“ Lauralei was raised in a Christian environment and although she took an unpleasant detour away from those teachings in her life it is evident from her texts to me and her posts on Facebook that she had come back to the path she started down at an early age. She had over 350 friends on Facebook and even though she had been an invalid for the last three years she rarely shared her condition with those friends. This is evident from the number of people who are shocked at her passing. Most of her posts were encouraging words to others. There were often offers of prayers for those she knew were having problems.

She loved music and she often posted songs for people. A few recent posts were: My God from Sister Act April 15th "Happy Easter weekend y'all. A special prayer for friend Neil Heins and family. As well as to all my biological family and friends. Love ya~~ just me, lauralei"

God Bless the Child -April 2nd "Song of the day. God Bless our children I pray. No more bad parents, drugs, violence, gang, etc. May God , the Lord Jesus help us I pray. And please end domestic assault of all types. I personally have been hit too many times by a jerk. It won't happen again. I am grown - a poor little child has no choice. So God Bless the sweet little children"

You've got a friend – April 1st - "For "Super Opie" Chuck Guthrie. Luv u my ol friend and super hero. Ms. Krause always taught that we would be lucky in our lifetime if we could count on one hand the number of true friends we have. I am uber lucky! You are one. And all my ten fingers and toes are loaded with friends and family. If you need me I am just down the street from your home."

Also that day

Hallelujah by Jason Castro "Good morning all. For my cousin Brenda Singleton. Share the word. Rejoice!! As I try to sleep I can't help but look at my Angel figurines one of whose hands are lifted toward Heaven- I thought of this song. Thought of blind gramma Marjorie and her and Aunt Mary sharing bibles together. Just closed my eye lids and I can see!"

And on march 31st when she posted Everybody Dance Now from the movie Evan Almighty she wrote "GOD IS SO COOL"
